[illegible] GAINST THE PROPOSED [illegible] OF CHICAGO.

A bill for the Division of the Regular Standing Army and the Formation of a National Militia—The People's Interior Department to Be in Danger—Message of Gov. of Arizona's Suggestions on the Subsidizing of Foreign Navies.

[illegible] who attended the meeting of the Socialistic Labor Party at No. 54 West Lake street yesterday afternoon with the idea that the proceedings were to be unusually interesting and that the speeches would be of the most incendiary character were disappointed. The principal call was of a rather startling character, and was supposed to outline the course which the Knights would undertake to pursue. The call was as follows:

[illegible]

The speeches were not outrageously abusive and bitterly denunciatory that is usual for afternoons by one of the radical element among the leaders of the United Labor party were opposed to such the Socialists, and had already devoted T. J. [illegible] Morgan, and as a consequence the speeches were not so dogged to be interesting and but few were present as public meeting. The meeting was presided over by Edward Wagner, who gave T. J. Shanahan, United Labor candidate for County Clerk, a chance. He began by reading the resolutions in the Tribune detailing the circumstances of the purchase of the tract of land at Rockwell, its subsequent offer to the Government for the establishment of a national park, and the passage of the Senate [illegible] bill. He then read a lengthy [illegible] which took the form of an indictment of the existing social system. He brought in [illegible] enough that is a country like this, [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] to denounce. The call was as follows:

[illegible]

[illegible] The Socialistic Labor Party of Chicago, in mass meeting assembled, protests against the passage of the bill now before Congress providing for the establishment of a military post at Rockwell, Ill., which would check the movements of the people.

[illegible]

Shortly after 2 o'clock a meeting [illegible] at No. 54 West Lake street which lasted from 2 till 6 o'clock. The principal thing discussed was the coming parade. [illegible] of the meeting was to get a full list of the names of those who are going to participate, [illegible] the [illegible] of organizing a competitive company drill [illegible] to the parade. It was finally decided that the men should [illegible] and that the [illegible] should [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

IN GENERAL.

The Grand Lodge of Knights and Ladies of Honor held a social session at the Masonic temple yesterday afternoon.

The Coroner was notified yesterday that the body of Charles Lundgren was found in the river at Lincoln Park prior to inquest.

The body of a male, apparently 40 years of age, in three-quarter dress coat, was found floating in the river at Grand Avenue. An inquest will be held.

A man with short red hair and a long white scar on the same cheek, dressed in a dark business suit, overcoat and dutch cap, registered at the office of R. J. Carmichael, Chicago, at the Sherman House, Tuesday morning, April 20, 1886, and left that hotel about noon on the following day, is requested to call at the office of the undersigned, or step into the police station, for something that may be to his advantage.

The committee having charge of the exercises in Lincoln Park at 3 o'clock to-day in memory of Lincoln's birthday, have issued an appeal to the public generally for the donation of anything in the line of flowers that can be spared, although they will gladly accept any contributions of evergreens, whether cut or growing, as there will be a large number of trees and bushes planted in the park in memory of the martyred President. Flowers may be left at the park entrance at the foot of Webster avenue, or sent to the park office, Dearborn street, near Division.

Property owners on Wright, Emery, and Ellsworth streets in the vicinity of Ada and Leffingwell avenues, on the West Division side, to the number of a thousand, are being urged by the Board of Public Works to petition for the paving of the streets mentioned. Many of the property owners have been waiting for the paving of Wright and Emery streets for a number of years, and have been promised that the work would be done this season. The petitions are to be filed with the Board of Public Works on or before March 1, and the work will be done by the Bitulithic Company.

The leading attorneys of Chicago met at the North Side Turner Hall yesterday and organized the Chicago Bicycle Club. The following officers were elected: President, [illegible]; Vice-President, Frederick Winter; Vice-President, Charles Schmidt; Secretary, Charles Schmidt; Treasurer, E. Keller; Captain, A. Young; Lieutenant, J. Spaeth; Sergeant, [illegible]. The club will meet every Tuesday evening, and will probably secure a suitable room for the purpose. Members will be permitted to ride wheels of any pattern, and will be required to wear a uniform. The club will probably not connect itself with any of the bicycle clubs of the city, but will be governed by rules similar to those governing the Wright and Emery Street Bicycle Club.

A DISTRICT OF WOMEN STORES.

Plotting of a Small Scale Rather Similar to Commissioner.

The Rock Island police attach considerable importance to the discovery at the office of the coroner of a note in front of a grocery store at No. 110 Monroe street. The body has been dissected across a cellar, and the note rolling upon an iron railing of the basement entrance, which had stood for two days, was indicating that the most vital part of atmosphere. He is described as 30 or 40 years of age, about five feet five inches high, with dark hair and mustache, dressed in a suit of dark brown clothes, light brown overcoat, and soft hat. He had a package of goods in a suit of dark brown clothes, light brown overcoat, and soft hat. He had a package of goods in his hand and the landlord, Mr. Wright, saw him go into the house. Mr. Wright, who is a police officer, thinks the man is a peddler, and will probably not return. The property is not valuable, and the loss will be small.

SUICIDES.

Wilson English, a farmer living at Wilson Springs, was accidentally killed about midnight Saturday night at Brighton, on the western limits of the town. English and Charles O'Neal were en route to England's home with a load of potatoes, arriving at Brighton about midnight. They unhitched from the wagon to feed their horses, and while O'Neal was in the act of unhitching the team English was standing on the tongue of the wagon. The tongue slipped from the wagon, and English fell to the ground, striking with his head on a stone. He died in a few minutes. English was about thirty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and two children. O'Neal was released from custody by the coroner's jury, which rendered a verdict that English came to his death by accident.

Sarah Hinkley, the man who committed the Kenosha daughter at Burlington Saturday afternoon, is still confined in the South Chicago jail. He was not arrested, either as was feared he might be by the friends of the dead, Drake will probably have a hearing before Police Magistrate Hyde this morning. The condition of the little girl is not serious as was at first thought. She will have to suffer the amputation, however, in a few days.

Englewood was treated to a performance Saturday night of a troupe of [illegible] which will hardly be repeated again. The house was well filled, many of the audience being people of good society who had been induced to go because of distant advertising and good recommends to the effect that the exhibition was to every way respectable. However, before the play was over the patrons had their money's worth and more, being unable to stand it longer.

A Rock Island special from Davenport, Ia., Jan. 30 (Special) to-day, 1884, a Fox Hunter train was wrecked about one mile east of here. A number of persons were injured and Engineer John Thomas was killed. The wreck occurred at midnight and nothing can be learned from the passengers except that the train was backed down to some one for the purpose of taking a few days afterward John Wickett of this city, who had already figured as a criminal on a small scale, was arrested for the robbery of the train. He was identified by the passengers and by the express messenger, who had been robbed of $1,000 in cash. Wickett was taken to Davenport, where he will be tried. He is a married man, and has a family living in this city. He is about twenty-five years of age, and has been employed by the Rock Island Company for several years. He has been employed as a brakeman on the Fox Hunter train for about a year. He is said to have been drinking heavily for several days before the robbery.

FULTON'S FIRST DAY.

Recollections of One Who Saw Her on the War Path.

Letter to Editor Commercial: Your notice of the recent decease of a very aged gentleman, who was a passenger on Fulton's first steamboat, built in the year 1807, reminds me of the sight of that boat in April, 1809, when a schooling at Pittsburg, on the Ohio River, I first the middle of the day she was slowly passing to ascend from New York, entered she had started the previous day on her passage to Albany, 150 miles distant. As the boat had to ever sights as her early trips of steam being novelty even there. Even at the present day probably here, on the first sight of a steamboat, the impression is vivid. Considering the [illegible] of the time being seventy miles above New York.

People at the present day probably have no conception of the concept of Fulton's first steamboat compared with the magnificent floating palaces of modern times. Her length was 130 feet, her breadth of beam 18 feet, depth of hold 7 feet, burden 240 tons, and her machinery was of 20 horse power. She was without deck, her guards were on a level with the gunwales, and her machinery was in the center of the vessel, and was covered with a slight house. The boat was built of live oak, and was copper fastened. Her model was that of the Dutch galliots, which were then the principal craft of the Hudson River. Her speed was about four miles an hour. She was rigged with two masts, and carried a large mainsail and jib. Her steering apparatus was a tiller. Her cabin was small, and was entered from the deck by a companion way in the center of the vessel. The cabin was furnished with two tiers of berths, one above the other, on each side, and a table in the center. The cabin was lighted by a single lamp, suspended from the ceiling. The boat was not provided with a state room, and the only accommodation for passengers was the cabin. The boat was not provided with a state room, and the only accommodation for passengers was the cabin. THE FLOOD AGAIN DOWN.

The Rock Island Road Suffers Another Loss.

Dispatch to Editor Commercial: Your correspondent is committing a grave indiscretion in making public a fragment of a letter that I received the other day from a well-known club man who sailed for Europe nearly a month ago, and has spent most of the time in Paris. Since his arrival on the other side, but the sensation inherent in the matter constrains me to [illegible] which I regret as a sort of public duty, and give the passage just as my friend wrote it. "There's a state of things for that Tammany," he writes. "The North, of course, possesses a majority of votes, and the Democratic party is divided into two factions. The one, which is in power, is composed of the [illegible] element, and the other, which is in opposition, of the [illegible] element. The latter, however, is the more powerful of the two, and the former, knowing this, have [illegible] to the [illegible] of the [illegible] to the [illegible] of the [illegible] to the [illegible] of the
